

JANUARY '12 NOW IN PAPERBACK

Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother by Amy Chua

(Penguin, 9780143120582, $16)

"Yale Law professor and history scholar Chua bravely and honestly relates her experiences in raising two daughters. Her 'Chinese parenting' approach presents a challenge for readers to understand how her unconditional love can translate into 'foreign' parental strategies that impose stringent strictures on her children's development. Their accomplishments in violin, piano, and academics strongly argue for the effectiveness of her method, although the pitfalls of the approach manifest themselves, and the difficult process of reevaluation results in a provocative and instructive work."

—Ed Conklin, Chaucer's Books, Santa Barbara, CA

The Death Instinct

A Novel, by Jed Rubenfeld

(Riverhead Trade, 9781594485602, $16)

"The Death Instinct is a riveting descent into a forgotten piece of history—the bombing of Wall Street in 1920—an event that has eerie parallels to the present day. Younger and Littlemore, who are essentially a deeper, more layered Holmes and a less passive, more involved Watson, dive headfirst into a thrilling conspiracy set in the ruins of the First World War. Rubenfeld has concocted a fast-paced, breathtaking thriller that knows just when to pause for a quiet moment of lyrical contemplation and when to ratchet up its tension to dizzying heights."

—Drew Williams, Little Professor Book Center, Homewood, AL

A Discovery of Witches

A Novel, by Deborah Harkness

(Penguin, 9780143119685, $16)

"I lost a good deal of sleep turning the pages of this tale of adventure, suspense, and romance. Ride along with this witch-in-denial and her guardian vampire prince as she struggles to reclaim her legacy and avoid the terrible fate visited earlier upon her family. The author did her homework and the history rings as true as the passion. I can't wait for the sequel!"

—Annie Leonard, The Next Chapter, Knoxville, IA

Ghost Light

A Novel, by Joseph O'Connor

(Picador, 978125002310, $15)

"Occasionally, a novel will come along that breaks the bounds between fact and fiction, romance and reality, to create a story so insightful and true that the scenes come to life before your eyes. Ghost Light is the fictionalized account of the famed Irish playwright J.M. Synge and his lover, the actress Maire O'Neill.

Alternating with the Dublin tableaux is the tale of Maire's later life as a poverty-stricken alcoholic in 1952 London, where she haunted by the memories of both her days with Synge and her acting career, and struggling to make her way, day by day. Bravo!"

—Carl Hoffman, Boswell Book Company, Milwaukee, WI

The Janus Stone

A Ruth Galloway Mystery, by Elly Griffiths

(Mariner, 9780547577401, $14.95)

"Forensic anthropologist Ruth Galloway discovers ominous links to ancient sacrificial rites when a child's headless skeleton turns up in the foundation of an old house. Detective Chief Inspector Harry Nelson, the married father of Galloway's unborn child, becomes the investigating officer, and the murderer sees a chance for blackmail. I look forward to reading more in this series!"

—Carol Schneck, Schuler Books & Music, Okemos, MI

Little Princes

One Man's Promise to Bring Home the Lost Children of Nepal, by Conor Grennan

(William Morrow Paperbacks, 9780061930065, $14.99)

"Grennan takes a year off from his job with the EastWest Institute and volunteers for three months in a Nepalese orphanage. He is captivated by his lively and affectionate young charges, but the story grows darker as he learns more about the for-profit traffic in young children stolen from their families and villages. Grennan vows to return to help reunite the children with their families, and the story of his fulfillment of that quest is powerful and moving."

—Sarah Goddin, Quail Ridge Books, Raleigh, NC

A Lonely Death

An Inspector Ian Rutledge Mystery, by Charles Todd

(William Morrow Paperbacks, 9780061726200, $14.99)

"Charles Todd has penned another mystery masterpiece! Ian Rutledge is determined to find the killer who is garrotting soldiers from Eastfield Company who survived the Great War. With the voice of Hamish, a dead soldier, constantly in his head, Inspector Rutledge wades through the red herrings and mistaken directions of the villagers. Along the way, we are reminded of the horrors and lasting effects of war while rooting for Ian to find love and happiness despite his fragile mental state."

—Kathy Wales, Martha's Bookstore, Balboa Island, CA

The Other Life

A Novel, by Ellen Meister

(Berkley Trade, 9780425243374, $15)

"Quinn's artistic mother took her own life, leaving Quinn wondering why. To help her cope on this journey, Quinn has the ability to travel between two parallel worlds via hidden portals. One world is a safe, suburban life with her husband, Lewis, and their young son Isaac on Long Island, albeit a world filled with the reality of her mother's death.

The other is a dramatic life in New York City with neurotic Eugene, a life in which her mother is still very much alive. The premise of these portals may seem strange, but Meister makes it work and does it very well."

—Annie Philbrick, Bank Square Books, Mystic, CT

The Terror of Living

A Novel, by Urban Waite

(Back Bay Books, 9780316097888, $14.99)

"Taut, fast paced, and gripping, this is a real page turner. Phil keeps his horse farm afloat by guiding the occasional illicit shipment across the border in the rugged North Cascades. He knows the land like the back of his hand, and with a quick ride over the mountain pass he is solvent again for a while. But this time they sent him a courier who is nothing but trouble. Bobby Drake is a lawman with a family history—his father made a few extra dollars just like Phil. Bobby is trying to live it down, doing a good job of catching the bad guys. The paths of these two cross violently on a trip gone horribly wrong in this outstanding debut."

—Deon Stonehouse, Sunriver Books, Sunriver, OR

You Know When the Men Are Gone

by Siobhan Fallon

(NAL Trade, 9780451234391, $14)

"Surprising, get-under-your-skin characters populate the spare landscape of Fort Hood, Texas, in this collection of linked stories that will have a compelling effect on even the most skeptical reader. Fallon opens a window into military base life from the perspective of the quiet supporters—spouses, children and injured vets—who stay home when the men deploy. A riveting debut!"

—Nicole Magistro, The Bookworm of Edwards, Edwards, CO
